North America Leads Gains Owing to Growing Demand for Advanced Dermal Fillers

In 2018, the market in North America was worth US$ 1,596.8 Mn. Driven by the growing demand for innovative and advanced dermal fillers, the region is expected to lead global market through the forecast years. As per a study conducted by ASPS, more than 2 million people in the U.S. underwent hyaluronic acid procedures. Increasing awareness about soft tissue fillers treatment in the U.S. is expected to drive the market in North America. Extensive availability of products in this region is positively impacting the growth of the market.

Apart from North America, the market in Asia Pacific is also growing substantially in the forecast years. The rising demand for aesthetics in China and India is creating growth opportunities for the market in Asia Pacific. In addition to this, the awareness about effectiveness of dermal fillers for acne scars, lips, and cheeks is increasing gradually, which is driving the market in this region. Key market leaders in India and China are adopting strategies such as new product launches, augmenting demand for dermal fillers.

Demand for Dermal Fillers to Rise Among Millennials Propelling Growth in the Market

Growing aging population across the world positively impacts the growth of the market. Increasing number of aged people are undergoing dermal filler therapy to uplift drooping skin and restore lost volume. Continuous support from governments to R&D initiatives and recent regulatory approvals will spur growth in the market.

“The dermal fillers market is driven not only by the relative longevity of tissue fillers, but it is also predominantly driven by increasing safety profiles,” said a lead analyst at Fortune Business Insights. “Market players are constantly focusing on innovating and upgrading their product portfolio to ensure accurate and improved aesthetic outcomes for patients,” he added. Driven by continuous innovations and advancements, even millennials find dermal filler treatment appealing. This will further fuel demand for dermal fillers in the forecast period.
