

Enemy 23:Life Through My Eyes

Introduction:

This is probably my first book ever. Most people surrounding me have wondered if I got what it takes to pen down a whole book. What they don't know is that I got a tendency of believing in the impossible. I wrote this book in my own perspective, and that simply means some of the things I'm going to unfold will sound untrue especially to the ears that aren't familiar with psychology and philosophy. In a succinct manner, philosophy is an investigative act. One example of this is trying to find out how old is Earth. In my own understanding I see a philosopher as a person who can argue with any statement and some would call that person a "Devil's Advocate".

I don't expect you to believe anything I'm going to say. I also didn't write this book with the intention of going against science, but if its possible I can. I don't know if I'm crazy or what but I've always seen the world in a different way from anyone. I grew up in a society that has what we call hood mentality. The place is so small, so small that one's brain becomes boxed in easily. I always believed in thinking out of the box. If you paid attention since from the start I'm pretty sure you've noticed I been going on about the word believe.

Chapter 1: The Beginning

The Beginning: Only if someone could tell a different breed has stormed upon the earth. Many would probably disagree without having any reason or motive to do so. A breed of its own kind I would say. It all started with pop music and RnB ,back in 2012, the moments which a black man would kill for. The truth is he never thought his psychedelic ego would elevate his psychology.This was a small chapter I must say and reason being I believe that there must be an English psychological meaning behind it, plus it wouldn't hurt to investigate a little bit. Such things don't kill but build you and give you the adrenaline to lust for more. Enough about whoever we talking about I'd like to go deep in my state of mind.

Chapter 2: Picture me rolling

Picture me rolling: Many would wonder why I used a title like that which does not imply anything with science. The phrase "picture me rolling" is mostly used by daydreamers.

People who live in a fantasy world. The phrase has also been used by big acts like 2Pac. Some use it as a way to motivate themselves but for me its a phrase I wouldn't dare use. Reason being, its like telling someone your plans and they could just destroy them out of envy, but it wouldn't hurt to dream a little bit.

Music through my ears: For me music is something I would talk about all day non-stop. Many would say music is life without realizing that music is actually bigger than life. Many individuals can't survive a day without listening to music. But in this case I would call music an "addictive demon". I've learned that when you've reached this level it becomes impossible to do anything without music. Now we say music has become a distraction in your life. Music also has a good side whereby it helps you relieve stress and anxiety. You can be amazed at the wonders of music as it can illuminate one of your darkest days. There are those genres which can help you relax and meditate like "classical jazz". If you are in war mode you can grab yourself a rock album or some "gangsta rap" song, but be careful because some of the songs in this genre have an activist spirit and you might end up looking like a politician in a fight. There are many styles of music and I have come across three of them which are:

1. New York Style
2. London Style
3. Los Angeles Style

1. New York Style: From what I've heard this type is composed of hard compressed songs. Most of these songs are darker in terms of production. E.g songs by artists like Kanye West and Travis Scott.

2. London Style: This type is not that different from the New York Style. It's just that it consists of medium compressed songs. Songs from this type are those which are called smooth reminiscent sounds. E.g songs by artists like Taylor Swift.

3. Los Angeles Style: The Compton Vibe Style. This style is very different from the other two. The songs are not compressed and the production is very dry. Genres like gangsta rap arose in the style. E.g songs by artists like Dr. Dre and Kendrick Lamar.

Did you know there are songs which can make you get suicidal thoughts. Yes it's true, they do exist. One of those songs is "Sunday Glory", but I wouldn't advise you to listen to this song unless you have a death wish. Now the question I'm asking myself is, 'who invented music'. Well I must say whoever did that is a genius.

Fame: Fame, what can we say about fame.

"Something we all adore,
Something worth dying for,
Nothing but pain,
Stuck in this game,
Searching for fortune and fame".

(Lyrics by rapper 2Pac) extracted from his song "Fame".

Fame is a demon and we'd normally say one is crazy for resenting it, not being aware of the dangers it beholds. Stepping into fame is like surfing across the dark seas, you never know what to expect. First timers in the fame world would probably think they got it all planned out but trust me, they in it for a surprise. You would probably think I've had a taste of fame or something but little did you know, I'm also searching for it. Fame has the ability to change a person, well that's what they say without it realizing it actually changes the people surrounding the famer. For me, all I can say is I would kill for fame.

Conspiracy theory: Money ain't easy to make unless you sell your soul. Question I'm asking is, how do you sell your soul?
Illuminati is proven to be true but I believe its a freaking lie. What makes me have doubts about Illuminati is the statements the society breath, e.g, the only way to make it big in music is to sell your soul. What about the ones that didn't sell their souls. Best believe you got struck by luck or manna from heaven. In conclusion I'd like to say illuminati is a scam, and its no secret that if you put faith on something it might work.

Chapter 3: Lifestyle through the lenses

Lifestyle through the lenses: All my life I have led a crazy lifestyle but I'd rather describe it as complicated. I've always tried to be different from anyone, well.... that's what I thought was the right thing to do. Little did I know, the society I'm going to grow up in would act like freaks and wear the same type of fashion. I have made peace with the fact that it's a norm in my country for things to be like this, but I still think it's unacceptable.

Fashion is like a dish perfectly prepped by a certified chef. It's one of the things that reveal the versatility within you. It gives you the thrive to keep going. One thing I've realized is, cheap clothing looks much better than expensive clothing. E.g 'Versace' and 'Gucci', but I'm not saying you mustn't wear them.

Being a Nigga: Many people think hip hop when you utter the word 'Nigga'. Truly speaking, it ain't like that, not at all. In my own understanding being a nigga is like following a culture. You gotta blend in with everybody. Let me tell you a secret, there's no way you gon survive as a nigga if you're shy. Most niggas are attention seekers. I've seen niggas as one of the world's most terrified ethnicities.

Gangstas in South Africa are well known for handling a knife, but with gangsta niggas, the tale is different, they walk around with guns and usually use the code "4,5" when addressing it. The nigga fashion is one of the craziest. Everything they do they go psychedelic. They are species with the biggest egos. The society which I live in find niggas irritating and probably think they are crazy. This topic is very sensitive to me because I also turned out to be a nigga maybe if I was in another environment, I would've turned out to be a junky or something. Being a nigga taught me how to be assertive. People still think the nigga word is racist, can't they see we got past that.

Way around the kitchen, Chef: A famous chef once said "everyone can cook". He wasn't joking when he said that. I grew up with no passion for food but when I work my way around the kitchen, I go nuts. Question is how can all be good cooks? Well I got an answer for this question, everybody just needs to put love in the pot. I mean, it ain't no secret that love can conquer all. Hate is like karma good people.

people lead their daily lifestyles but in my own point of view. Being a fashion designer is also one of my talents, it has the ability to bring out the creativity in an artist.

Chapter 4: Academic versus general intelligence

The academic aftermath: According to my experience, education is poison. Many parents especially black ones believe that education matters more than the external life in general. The era that the country has went through really caged in a lot of minds. Its no doubt that a black person will always be idolized with a monkey. The education pupils get mentors them to work for other people other than being independent and assertive. That's why I hate school. The education system feeds the mind what they think is suitable for it, which doesn't work. A little warning, don't fool around taking my advise that's how I prefer to roll.

Inner Intelligence: You don't have to perform better academically to be intelligent. It only takes the effort you put in to improve your IQ. I've found a lot of methods which you can execute to let your mind run wild.

Reading is one of those methods. Reading lets your imagination climb the highest peak of the mountain. Did you know if you read a lot you become better at singing? Rappers who read a lot tend to get down very well with freestyles, they are quick thinkers. The IQ of that person is higher than of a person who performs better academically. That means education adds no worthy value to your brain. There's nothing superior than being intelligent at your own accord. Being intelligent simply means you can view life in a different manner, in a manner of a philosopher.

The pen is mightier than the sword: The quote evolves around multiple theories. What gets written down stays around forever than a physical fight. The quote may sound wisdom less but it can save you from a sticky situation. A great wise leader chooses peace over warfare. One perfect example is the "Peace Treaty of the Versailles".

I didn't wanna get too deep in this chapter due to a couple of reasons. One being the hate I got for education. I believe it should be banned. An intelligent person has more chances of surviving in the outside world than an educated person.

Chapter 5: Male and Female

Women through my understanding: There's this believe that a man can't leave without a woman. Which is definitely not true in most cases. Some women can be very annoying to a point you start feeling like committing suicide. This is because you will never know what they want. I've also noticed that they don't want a controlling and wanna be treated as sovereign.

The current world we living in believes that women should be treated equally with men. They also want to be leaders like men, but truly speaking whenever most of them are given a chance, then they tend to blow it. I myself don't have that much curiosity in women so I'd like to keep this topic succinct.

Men in general: Men got what we call "pride" some would say egos. One thing about them is that they will never accept help from another man. Sometimes this pride is a killer to them, as they would rather endure suffering than get help. They have a twisted mentality which makes them think they gon lose their manhood if they do so. The preaches men as the protectors of women but what are they to do when a woman lays a hand on them? Well I also don't know. The world would be a much better if all men ruled the world, but that's my opinion.

Chapter 6: Fantasy

Meditation, seeing the unseen: Most people don't know they have a third hidden eye. This is because of the phobia they have for getting to knowledge, which to that I'd probably say "knowledge is key". When you meditate, your mind enters another dimension. This is due to your consciousness. Relaxing is another method of meditation as you need to let loose of your muscles. Some people believe that you get superpowers from meditating. Which is something I haven't experienced, not that I don't believe in it. What I got from meditation, was the ability to have lucid dreams.

Lucid dreams: "Lucid dream, lucid dream, ability to dream on a dream, they call you the dreamers dream". Many have no idea how wonderful and enticing it is to dream on a dream. From my experience I'd call it the "Paradise". When on this dream, you get to take control of your locomotion and maybe also get superpowers. But I also think lucid dreaming is dangerous, what if you get killed on that dream? Is it possible that lucid dreams give reactions like the actual life? These are my questions for you to find answers to.

Sleep paralysis: Growing up, I have encountered many methods on how to prevent experiencing sleep paralysis. Others would imply that I must sleep with a knife under my pillow, sleep with a fire matches stick in my head etc, but you wouldn't believe when I say god can conquer all. A bible is a spiritual book, when you sleep next to it, the sleep paralysis can't touch you. Sleep paralysis is a spirit that suppresses you on your bed and you lose the ability to scream. What I have noticed nowadays ever since I started meditating is that I tend to have a certain feeling which kinda alerts me when the spirit is near. It feels like its creeping from my back. So in a succinct manner I'd like to say, sleep paralysis is a bad thing. To those who haven't experienced it, don't you dare wish to. Did you know that sleep paralysis can kill you, especially if it happens between the early hours (3am and 4am) which are those hours the heart usually stops beating for a minute. To you weirdos who enjoy sleep paralysis, know that might be your last sleep.

Chapter 7: Flashing night lights

Flashing night lights: I decided to run on another topic which gon make you wonder why I chose it also. Question is, do you really get the motivation that's hidden behind the flashing night lights. It ain't no doubt that the city nights give you much adrenaline than the township lights. What mentorship are you going to get from a tall street light, no skyscrapers reaching great heights decorated with illuminations. Such places give you the perspective view of your own precious future. You can't be surrounded by people who don't wanna act in and expect to make it out of the projects.

Put your money where your mouth is: Money surprisingly be the only purpose of living on this planet Earth. The chances of surviving without money are very thin like the tip of a syringe needle. "Money, money my motivator". If you ask someone to do something for you, good or bad, trust me they won't even stutter. If you are given a job, no matter how hard it is once you've seen the money, you can even finish in a day's time. It ain't no secret that money can turn a pure saint into a devil. There are many who have sacrificed their loved ones for money using black magic. A person even gets the gut to take another person's life once money is involved. Most people believe that money can't buy you happiness, which I think is stupid. Have you noticed the sadness that becomes over you when you get penniless? One example is a weed smoker. Have you realized how they get excited when they see weed, and remember you must spend money nowadays in order to get weed. So imagine what they must be going through during dark days. Another toxic thing is the love of money whilst not having even a single cent. Such manner can turn you into what we call a "lowlife thief". You will turn into someone's lackey, but I'm not saying you should hate money.

Environmental impact on success: As I said in the topic of night lights that you can't get any motivation from living in a township, but not all won't make it out. There's always that special one chosen by the Maker himself. Did you know the society that surrounds you also has an impact on how you view your future? Your mind tends to record every opinion laid down on you, that's one of the reasons people become discouraged. Most people in the township end up thinking they are talentless because someone said so, not knowing that person uttered those words out of envy. Being assertive is one of the things you gotta teach yourself in life in order to survive. Every night before you sleep you must tell yourself "I'm the best". It's not only the society that discourages you. Small places like the one I live in are resourceless, so it becomes very difficult to showcase your talent to the world. Not only talent, even opening a business becomes very difficult. If your parents are planning to relocate to a smaller place, you better tell them to cancel that idea.

Chapter 8: Keeping it real

Keeping it "Real": Can just keeping it real be dangerous? People nowadays think the best way to roll with life is by keeping it real. Keeping it real for who though? Did you know when you show people the real you, that's when you become most vulnerable to them? Many individuals' plans failed due to keeping it real. For me, I think everything has a time and a place. E.g a gangster. Sometime you might decide to keep it real and be a gangster in a place you not from, only to find out it was a wrong move to do that and by that time you'll be at the Pearly Gates. I mean its not such a nice thing to meet your maker sooner than expected. In conclusion, I'd like to say "keep it fake". Mark my words.

Kill them with kindness: People who tend to motivate themselves with these words (Kill them with kindness) are the most foolish on the planet. They only using those words because someone whom they've been kind to played with them. It is one of the most remarkable quotes in this current day but I consider it stupid. Another thing is, I would like to advise everyone to stop using quotes unnecessarily.

Show no love: God said we must all love each other, but how can you show love to someone who doesn't know it, let alone the one who is refusing to reveal it. There is love between friends, families, classmates, relationship couples and etc. Just because all these people I mentioned above are close to you, it doesn't mean you need to give them love. Same thing in love relationships nowadays, when you show your partner some love they start to think you are desperate to be with them. Which is not true. I mean truly speaking, how can you be desperate to be with someone when you got your whole body to yourself? I'm just saying.

Survival of the fittest: You don't have to be fit physically in order to survive with the fittest. This statement simply implies that chances of surviving were impossible but you got to make it. The reason I chose to add this topic is because the tables have changed. Instead of finding the light through legitimate ways they decide to take shortcuts. It's not a sin to take shortcuts but is it really fair on those who worked hard? It's like eating of someone's sweat, which is definitely not a cool thing to do. Same thing happens in places like school and workplaces. During exams pupils bribe teachers in order to pass but as they say everything has its consequences. We don't know what the outcome will be. For me, if you cheated your way to the top you not that fit and there's no way we gonna give you the title of survival of the fittest. I know some already feel guilty after reading this topic, but what can I say? IT IS WHAT IT IS.

Chapter 9: Role Models

Role models: What's a role model? How are they supposed to act? How should they dress? Most importantly, is it really necessary to look up to them? It is believed that there is no one who doesn't have a role model, but is that a fact or an opinion? In my view I think having a role model is the most foolish act a person can make. A lot of people tend to do exactly what their role models does, which is definitely not a good thing because if your role model kills people for fun like e.g, serial killer, chances are you gon end up like him. There are two types of role models. The Good and the Bad.

Good role models: First of all if you want to be a good role model, you must tell whoever it is that admires you to never act like you. Instead inspire them to be one of your kind not you. Being a good role model doesn't mean always doing good, I mean even good takes lives sometimes. This means you must only do bad for good reasons. Rapper A-reece once told his fans to stop acting like him. I guess he was just trying to be a good role model, I don't know.

Bad role models: This type comes with a lot of advantages. You just live your life, you do good or bad you just don't care. You don't care whether your admirers are happy with your behavior or not. A bad role model portrays the same role as peer pressure.

The only way to survive on this planet is to have a bad role model. I mean, who are you going to fight against if you got good intentions.

Chapter 10: Sacrifices

Sacrifices: Can a sacrifice be a good thing and a bad thing at the same time? I also don't know the answer but I believe that only time will tell. Its like strolling through a dark valley phase with no illuminator to demonstrate the paths you might embark to. Even small sacrifices can be life changing. A sacrifice can be your family member, or sacrificing a girl for another girl. Which leaves the other girl hurt and you know what they say "a woman scorned is bitter". The quote doesn't go like that because I decided to do it my way and now I gotta deal with the aftermath. Note this (making a sacrifice is easier than dealing with it) .

This chapter was only on one topic which is "Sacrifices". Its a very sensitive topic to me, so I decided to keep it concise. This some ish I've been going through today :mark the date

18November2021

But I'm just sacrificing on who's getting a sweet between my two classmates, so don't sweat it too much, it's not that deep.

Chapter 11: Inspirations

Inspirations: I know some of you will wonder why I didn't put put the topic "Inspirations" under the chapter of role models, well I got an answer for that. The naked truth is, I don't really see role models as inspirations as I've said, they're unnecessary. Well, that's what I believe, I don't know about you. Did you know you can be inspired by anything and I mean anything. Even an ant can inspire you to be a hard worker, it ain't no big deal to it. Inspirations act like an Atlas. It gives you the way around the world. I wrote this chapter with intentions to inspire y'all though I don't feel inspired by it.

Chapter 12: Telekinesis

Telekinesis: The ability to lift objects with your mind. I know this may sound untrue but trust me, it is. This act has been executed by many countries for years but in some states, its illegal to practice telekinesis. Note that telekinesis is way different from magic and you'll look dumber than now if you try to compare the two. I wrote about this topic because its one of the weird activities I've encountered over the past. When I learned about telekinesis, it was obvious that the society I live in would call me a liar and think I'm making it all up until I hit them with the naked facts. One thing I've learned is telekinesis is dangerous as it drains your energy and you need full concentration when practicing it. Telekinesis can also cause brain damage, but don't let this discourage you. The percentage of people got brain damage from telekinesis is very low, and it wouldn't hurt to be another statistic. Remember that telekinesis deals with high concentration, that means you must be a good meditator to be a master at it. Through telekinesis you can't just lift objects only, you can even bend a steel spoon, maybe even read people's minds. I don't about that but someone in my hood who claims to have done it said those were the results he got. I also didn't know telekinesis can turn people into liars.

Magic: Magic evolves around tricks which is something I never tried to do. The thing is I don't condone fooling around with people's minds. I just wanted to make it clear to you that "TELEKINESIS IS NOT MAGIC"!! and never will be. Another thing is, "TELEKINESIS IS WAY BETTER THAN MAGIC"!!

Chapter 13: Image on photography

Image on Photography: Many have no clue that photography is also considered as art. Reason being it takes a special skill to capture the right angles. What I like about it is that you use the naked eye to peep through the lenses while you observe the body locomotion of your subject and wait to make a click at the right moment. A talent like this is not to be taken for granted. What I wanted to clarify on this topic is the hate I got for people who just take images and put them up for everyone to observe. That's showing pure disrespect for the culture as a whole. I would like to take this moment to reprimand them like a God from their wrong doings.

A good image: Many people think a good image is supposed to be just vivid then you are good to go. It really doesn't work that way. Did you know a fully blurred image can also be cool. What matters most on this case is the background and the amount of blur you add on it. Nowadays people only blur the background and that really disgusts me. I mean where have you seen a celebrity's image with a blurred background only. That just shows how twisted people are, but it also shows how things differ from now and how they did them from back then.

Remember, you need to put more work on the angles also. Another cause of a bad image is those people who fool themselves into thinking they've done a good job after taking their nasty images.

Chapter 14: Rain

Rain: I've been dodging myself from writing about rain and the only reason that made me do it now is because its raining outside.

Most people enjoy rainy days more than sunny ones, but they're the worst. Imagine getting wet on a cold day. Its like going through ice and fire at the same time.

I hope you are not expecting me to add more topics on this chapter because the only occurrence outside is rain. I'll only enjoy rain once I've moved to the city. Zoocci Coke Dope once said "when you pray for rain you better know it gets muddy in the dirt". As for the dirt, that's where I come from.

Chapter 15: Animated

Animations: Its no secret that kids love cartoons more than anything on this planet. Animations can be good and bad for children, especially small ones. When kids are still small they adapt faster to the behavior of something they see on a regular bases. One example could be singing with the cartoons. They also adapt easily to the language they hear on the cartoons.

Cartoons have the power to shape the future world. It will be up to it whether it destroys or build. On the bad side, animations get mentioned repeatedly in cases of conspiracy theories evolving around illuminati.

Have you noticed that when a lot of people grow up they start to develop some resentment for cartoons. Which I would consider it as a stupid act to begin with. They block themselves from the joyous childhood moments. My favorite animations are:

The Boondocks: These ones taught me how to act American in the public. You know, how to stand up for yourself. Made me learn how to make a name for myself. I preview this as the best animation of all time. My wish is that watching The Boondocks should be a culture in my family.

Pingu: Everyone in my hood would probably think you are crazy if you still watch Pingu. People lack the understanding of how creative the cartoon is. This cartoon taught me how to act a fool. They showed me how to be different from others.

There are no other cartoons which I think are worthy enough to educate you. Take my word, you'll go places.

Chapter 16: Life

On this chapter I just wanted to touch down on the subject of life and how I see it. Life to me is nothing but a dream but not to all of us. Sometimes it feels like you're riding on a rollercoaster ride to hell. Like you can feel the flames burning, but at good times its all merry merry. I believe nobody knows the purpose of life until they take their last breath. This is due to people underestimating every situation they come across in life. Life deserves to be treated as if its treasure because its rare, once you take it you can't reverse the action.

Is taking one's life the biggest sin in the whole universe? Can one be forgiven after executing such evil? I guess nobody knows nothing till the answers get uncovered by God himself. Have you realized that life is meaningless without the people you care about. Same thing applies to having a lot of money but nobody to share it with. You wouldn't believe it if I told people who enjoy life the most are the ones who don't have much of wealth. In this case we remember a quote by rapper The Notorious B.I.G "more money, more problems". I bet about 95% of the world's population is ignorant when it comes to this quote because they're all about securing the bag.

Many would go as far as claiming that Biggie only said that because he had money and didn't want them to taste it. Well the truth is, he had money and lots of it but also knew the consequences of having it. If money can buy happiness, I bet it can also buy sadness into your life. Life today evolves around money. Which is something that was implemented by people. Technology came in and twisted the structure of lives. Life used to be a wonder, nowadays life is expensive. Well I guess life is on sale.

Chapter 17: Addiction

Addiction: Back in the days addiction used to be a taboo but has suddenly turned into the it thing of nowadays. People would rather get hooked than live a normal. One about these addicts is that they don't seem to have any regret turning to whatever got them hooked. The main ingredient in this addiction recipe is the catastrophes of this world. People who get hooked tend to use this say "when we smoke, we escape reality". Well that's how they feel.

Being an addict is no longer a bad thing. Have you realized as the years keep going the world keeps on turning bad, even kids in primary schools have started to smoke. For me, it ain't such a bad thing for a young homie to exercise the lungs at a young age. In order to have peace of mind, you need to accept the world as it is. Addiction doesn't only occur on drugs or alcohol, some get addicted to simple things like TV, videogames, food and also listening to music. So just because you don't smoke or drink don't think you ain't an addict.

They say you get killed by what you love. Many don't have any idea that a TV can kill you. Don't ask me how, go investigate for yourself, every man for himself on this cruel world. Some addictions kill you mentally, like videogames. Kids who are glued up in videogames tend to have low academic performance. I just want you to know that I wasn't discouraging you to leave what you love, do it and keep on doing it till you die.

Chapter 18: Winner status

Being a winner: Sometimes, to be a winner you have to lose the game. Did you know every time you lose you gain knowledge? I once lost 3 consecutive chess matches but my next opponent after that tournament didn't see anything. If you lose too many times everyone begins to underestimate you and starts to flex with their special skills not realizing you're busy studying them. Some would even go as far as letting their guard down. There are so many cases which you can be a winner in but I ain't gon mention them, just exercise your brain for a little bit and think for yourself, I've already gave you an example, but if its a fight against a girl just beat the niga up even though running away or losing the battle will make you a winner. You ain't gotta come out as a fool in front of your girlfriend.

This is one of those short chapters to give you motivation and the adrenaline to keep going. Don't mistake me with a motivational speaker, I just know ways around this life better than you do.

Chapter 19: Demons versus Monsters

Demons: Demons are the best things you can ever have in this life. I know that sounds weird but just know that me and are not the same, we're different, just chill. Many of you see demons as obstacles in life but little did they know a demon is loyal than your best friend. A demon will never tell you to go do something bad unless there is a necessity to it. A demon will never put pressure on you but will show you what's real. A group that plays a major role in painting demons as bad subjects are the musicians. People most of these singers didn't even pen down those lyrics by themselves. Those who did didn't even really mean them. According to my findings nobody has ever had their demon haunt them, unless you're the demon yourself.

Monsters: I'd rather be a monster than just a normal being. People tend to take advantage when you're kind to them. Being a monster differs from being a demon. Rapists, murderers and others are subjects which we consider as monsters. Being a monster means you're bad to society. Unlike a demon, it doesn't just stay inside you, you show it to the world. If it was back in the day I would consider being monster as taboo, but the only way to live with the current society is to just be one. Not saying that you should abuse women, rape kids or murder people. Being just cruel and ignorant to the is enough. To everyone who's normal, if you see someone acting a monster, just shoot them with a rifle please. We can't live with such.

Chapter 20: Ride and die

Ride and die: This quote is used by many relations between love couples, friends and family. My friend just recorded a song with a title like that a few weeks ago. The niga finna ride and die for his homies. Well that's understandable for friends to ride and die for each other, not in a love relationship. I mean how can you ride and die for someone you just met now. Relationships tend to break faster nowadays than back in the days so I think it's not safe to utter such words to your partner.

Chapter 21: Being yourself

Being yourself: This is not a topic to encourage you to be yourself because that's something you gotta tell yourself, or live by other people's opinions. Being yourself can sometimes have consequences just like people who came out as gay. Everyone will judge you and for what reason you won't know.

Chapter 22: The End

The End: The end is like the last day on earth. Did anyone approve his behavior. The scripture was not as expected. Only he delivered was malice. The aftermath was never recovered from.

Many of you are probably wondering why I kept this book short. This book was actually inspired by Sun Tzu's "The Art of War". I was impressed by the way he laid out large data in a brief manner.
