ABOUT THE PROJECT

Climate change is gradually affecting humanity more and more with rises in global temperatures, changes in precipitation patterns, rising seas, extreme heatwaves, intense downpours, floods, droughts, and cyclones occurring either more frequently or in places they never did before and the issue of climate-induced migration is emerging with numerous displacements around the world. We believe that climate change is a crucial issue of our times, one that needs to receive more attention that it does in order for people to be inspired to take climate action and mitigate the impacts of climate change while there is still time.

This project aims to raise awareness on the topic of climate-induced migration in order to educate and inspire young people to rethink their attitude towards climate change, from their day to day household activities, to their purchasing habits.

We hope to broaden their horizons on this topic, and to inspire them to engage in climate action in two ways:

(1) by adopting new sustainable habits themselves

(2) by spreading the word about what they have learnt through the activities of this project and raising more awareness about climate change, climate migration and the need for climate action.

AIMS OF THE PROJECT

Climate-induced migration is a direct effect of climate change on humanity and it connects climate change with values around solidarity and human rights, giving it another dimension that is not solely environmental, which appeals to a broader audience and their respective social norms.

We aim to raise awareness on those topics and educate youth workers and everyone involved with youth on how to work on environmental and climate-related matters by appealing to issues in which they are already interested in order to spark their interest and encourage them to take action.

GOALS OF THE PROJECT

- To raise awareness about climate change-induced migration and the impacts of climate change on humanity and society.
- To inspire youth towards a more climate-friendly life.
- To generate knowledge and a basic understanding of climate change and the problems associated with it, as well as the solutions in which they can be involved.
- To nurture both social and environmental values in youth as it a topic strongly connected with both of them.
- To create active aptitudes in the participants and encourage them to engage in climate action.
- To provide participants with the necessary evaluation capacity to be able to assess their lifestyle decisions in regard to their impact on the environmental and global warming.
- To encourage young people to develop their own sense of responsibility, as well as the will to sensitize others.

CORTES DE LA FRONTERA

Cortes de la Frontera is a traditional Andalusian white village, located between the Alcornocales Natural Park and Sierra de Grazalema Natural Park in the western reaches of Malaga province.

The village is located on the mountains and is overlooking the Guadiaro with a spectacular backdrop of the Serranía de Ronda mountains.

The landscape around it consists of extensive forests of cork trees (alcornocales) that stretch from the Guadiaro river westwards, to where the municipal boundary meets Cadiz province, and beyond.

Cork has contributed greatly to the local economy since the late 17th century and Cortes used to be one of the richest Pueblos Blancos (white villages) due to cork production.

Evidence of this wealth can still be seen today in the grand 18th-century mansions lining the main street. The village of Cortes de la Frontera currently has a population of around 4,500 and is located at 623m.
