Thesis Statements

Clearly stating your argument

AIMS:

- To clarify what a thesis statement is.
- To teach students how to write a good thesis statement.

Lecture: Due to the length of first year papers, the students need to be able to state clearly and succinctly exactly what the argument of their paper is going to be.

Every good academic paper begins by presenting a thesis statement. The purpose of every academic paper is to make an argument. The thesis statement is the very core of the introduction. The thesis responds to the question that you have been given and tells the reader what you will be arguing in response to that question. Do not simply re-word the essay question.

Outline the four components of the lecture – What is a thesis statement?, Writing a thesis statement, Methods of Supporting your Argument and Assessing your thesis statement – along with the overall aims of the lecture (as stated above).

What is a thesis statement?

A thesis statement is a short statement, usually only a single sentence that distils the central argument of an academic paper. It is first stated in the introduction of the paper. The body of the essay then goes about illustrating the merits of this statement, or why it is that the author
