ABOUT THE ARTIST

Inspiration for Lynne rises from memories of landscapes where she has formed strong connections, in particular the places where she has lived. A visit to Lynne's studio will feel like a walk in the forest as her work depicts the beautiful natural landscape of Gippsland, predominantly the forests of the area. Lynne is a keen hiker, and these treks inspire her to create as she soaks in the natural environment.

When speaking about her art practice, Lynne says her process "consists of expressing on canvas my many experiences and connections with our natural environment, most recently around the Gippsland region. It's while exploring and discovering much of what Gippsland has within it from snowy high country, through valleys and up through the Strzelecki Ranges, around the lakes and down to the sea, the region is vast and beautiful. My favourite areas though are where the towering Mountain Ash trees are to be found. These species are unique to Victoria and Tasmania. This magnificent tree is known as the worlds tallest plant, reputed to grow a metre a year, and so in a relatively short amount of time they can reach a hundred metres soaring from the forest floor. My first encounter with this species of tree has left an indelible visual impression and my current work largely consists of depictions of these rainforests and the mountain ash in particular."
