Priming

The wait is nearly over—Priming is almost ready to come out of Closed Beta and publicly launch!

To set expectations up front, our initial release will come with a fully functional Explorer enabling users to understand pricing, volume, and much more for all cards and/or Prime Sets. The Explorer table also offers flexible filters and grouping on any metadata, gameplay attribute, or even certain financial parameters as well. Choose your own perspective!

What's next? We'll be heads down on pushing towards the Portfolio experience. This requires a number of new sources to ensure we can provide every user an accurate profit and loss statement on their Parallel assets. I know everyone misses the Leaderboard of old—don't fret as the Portfolio experience will bring it back.

Some of the incremental updates you'll notice between now and then will include: Base L2 support, Echo pricing, caching metrics, and more.

Tune into our first public demo on the Game Cellar currently planned for November 14. Come check out how raritycapital and ParagonsDAO use the tool to discover trends across the market—and if that wasn't enough, we'll also unveil an extra special new product then!