

Minecraft Mod Adds Terraria-like Armour Sets

Each Minecraft mod offers something a little different for players of the quintessential Sandbox game. You can alter the way that world generation functions to include underground rivers, or add mobs with control that allow you to play like the Total War game, or even gain Breath Of The Wild-inspired powers to use on grand adventures. We now have something straight out of Terraria.

Most of the time, the best Minecraft mods are those that don't totally alter the game's gameplay, since just a slight change to the game is usually the most enjoyable. We found a mod that lets you create new kinds of armour. It makes the game seem more like Terraria.

The Plenty of Armors mod adds 21 new armor sets to the game. It is missing the U however, we'll accept it. Each set is broken into its own set. Each has its own benefits, such as giving protection from fire damage or giving the player an enticing hiding. <https://top-minecraft-servers.info/> The standard Minecraft game does not have armor, and this is a great option to spice things up.

This Minecraft mod is compatible with versions 1.19.1, 1.19.1, 1.19.2, and 1.19.2. It's still being developed, so expect more armour sets and new custom effects to come in the near future. The mod's creator appears to be focused on making sure that the mod works. He has already replied to a query about bugs despite the fact the mod is only a few days old.

We've got an extensive list of the best Minecraft seeds that you can test the mod in a cool location. If you'd rather look at something stunning and impressive, then take a look at these most impressive Minecraft designs.