

10:12 pm
4/23/2021

The completion of the Jedi

On March 13, 2021 I had a vivid dream that was mainly centered around Jedi. Most noticeably A Jedi Ranboo, who later that day after I woke from the dream decided to post pictures of his Light-saber on Twitter. I've thought about this dream quite a bit as it was very interesting to me, not to mention I thought it was cool that the IRL content creator just so happened to upload said images the same day.

I don't always write down my dreams, though I thought I would jot this one down for memory's sake.

The dream starts out as though I'm going through a normal day IRL, and looking at Twitter. Scrolling through I see a lot of Minecraft YouTubers, particularly Ranboo tweets as I follow his content. (I've loved Ranboo's content ever since I was recommended his chair spinning video on YouTube. So of course he's one of the people I follow as I enjoy his humor and kindness towards others.)

As the dream continues though I noticed several tweets indicating that Ranboo got into some sort of accident and was in the hospital. I think Tubbo was with him though I'm not sure? I do remember the dream showing tweets and people being concerned, including me. The dream skipped ahead a bit and I see that Ranboo posted a Bible verse on his main twitter. A lot of people seemed confused by this, and while I can't recall what the exact verse was I remember specifically noticing that it was in old King James Version.

The dream then continues to skip forward in time to where my parents are helping me return a battery to an automobile store. (Again, the beginnings of this dream has a very seemingly uneventful "slice of life" vibe to it.) I'm having some issues dealing with my dad and various family issues going on. However as we are returning this battery my dad brings up a Jedi completion that he heard about which was going to be taking place for all local Jedi to participate in. This perked my interest as it was heavily implied that I was a Jedi. The dream goes through a quick fast forward of me looking into signing up for said competition and getting accepted.

As everything is getting ready, and the dream reveals more info about the competition. I see that all the contestants are divided into teams of 4. I'm looking through the chart to see who my teammates are, to be surprised that I see Ranboo, Technoblade and some other random boy who's name I didn't recognize. This excited me greatly as these are content creators that I follow, and I just so happen to be on the same team as them too! That being said, the list did not list them by their usernames, but their IRL names, as I recognized Techno's name was Dave. I then noticed it listed Ranboo's name as something around the effect of "loge" and I just kinda gave a slight nod at the chart going "Oh ok so that's his real name..." But as I turned my head to walk away from the electronic board I went "Wait... WHAT KIND OF NAME IS LOGE?????"

This was a very strange and silly moment in the dream. ... Seriously though, what kind of name is Loge anyway????

The dream finally does it's last time skip forward to the competition. The dream presents this completion as a regular accordance for young jedi to participate in. And basically, every jedi team is tasked to run through this large spaceship of sorts and press every single button as they possibly can to turn it on. When pressed the button will light up, team who has the most buttons pressed and lit up by the time limit wins the game. As the game starts all the kids are seen running through the ship with their light-sabers, either green or blue. I noticed in the dream that all the kids who had blue light-sabers were running up and mostly pressing the buttons with their hands, whereas the kids with green light-sabers were mostly using the force to press the buttons.

Now, one thing that was revealed about my team was that... we were all VERY competitive and extremely determined. Not to mention we seemed to get along and were all having fun. So when the game was going on we were coordinating strategies and split ourselves into groups of two. Technoblade (who in appearance looked like the design from Sadist's animations) and the other kid both had blue light-sabers, and thus they were running down hallways in a mini team pressing buttons. Meanwhile, Ranboo and I both had green light-sabers, and we were basically waving our hands and turning on a whole bunch of buttons at once using the force.

That being said, while most kids were just turning on a few buttons at a time (either by physically pressing it or using the force) our team was going EXTREMELY fast. Techno and the random boy were running down hallways pressing buttons super quickly, meanwhile Ranboo was shown to be extremely strong with the force and turning on nearly half a wall at a time. As for me, I was able to fly and just ZOOMED down a hallway and turning buttons on via hallways and entire rooms at once.

Throughout the competition there was a leader board with each person's individual ranking as to how many buttons they were pressing, which also was a slight indication of their force abilities as well? (And by force ability I don't necessarily mean force telekinesis, but just overall skill level in general. Blue Jedi generally more skilled in physical type force maneuvers where as green ones more mental, if that makes sense?) So while all the other teams were doing pretty normally, our group was outperforming by a HUGE margin. The random boy's individual ranking being a bit above average. Then Techno who was very VERY high up. However Ranboo and I were in EXTREMELY abnormally high numbers on the board. Me being above Ranboo by a bit, but him still being in close second.

Of course seeing by the fact that Techno was SUPER fast, Ranboo obviously doing a lot and how I was able to light up whole rooms and fly... our stats being super high up was kinda self explanatory.

That being said the announcers and people running the competition were all in shock and obviously warbling during the announcement of what was going on. Though as this was happening the dream kinda gave an unspoken knowledge that something wasn't quite right. Mainly the realization that the competition was meant to be a ruse/cover up to activate all the buttons in the spaceship for something sinister. The completion was supposed to be something that happened slowly over the course of many months or years. Basically a reoccurring competitive event. However, because our team was so high leveled in the force we were turning on almost all the buttons in the ship and speeding up the process. So the announcers went quiet and behind the scenes were scrambling to figure out what to do.

Meanwhile, our team was completely unaware of this notion and was just having fun. The 4 of us would run into each other and look at the board and get excited, encouraging one another to keep going. We were winning! We were winning! Then suddenly we are running through a dark room turning the buttons on, when a hidden door in one of the wall opens. The 4 of us stop in confusion, as this wasn't supposed to happen?

We looked onward at the bright white light of the now opened door, when a very tall figure slowly emerges. When he steps out of the door I noticed that he looked exactly like the Predator from the movie "Alien vs. Predator", with long deadlock like "hair" and instead of hands just had long claws for arms.

(The dream gave the implication that this is one of the things that was in the spaceship and wasn't supposed to be "released" until much later. But because of how fast we were, we had ended up releasing it prematurely. Which is why the competition host were scrambling to figure out what to do as we were kinda messing up with their plots. That being said, our group of 4 was still unaware of this information.)

The monster then walks up to the random boy who was in our group and thrusts his claw like arm into our team mate's stomach. Which, I would describe ins style similar to Sadist's DreamSMP animation of c!Phil killing c!Willbur, as to the type of stabbing that occurred. That being said, the way the dream showed the event felt VERY real, as though I was actually watching a real human being killed, rather than an animation or film.

The monster pulls it's claw arm out of the random boy's stomach and our teammate falls to the ground lifeless. Techno, Ranboo and I stand still completely stunned by what just happened while the monster then slowly turns it's head to look at the three of us.

The three of us collectively and unamamasly go "nope" and proceed to book it as fast as we can to escape. We are screaming and running through doors in panic while this huge monster that is WAY stronger, is chasing us. With me being able to fly I do remember some cases where I would stop to slow down/make sure I'm not out speeding my friends to abandon them, and I noticed they would do the same. Basically we were collectively trying to escape while not abandoning each other.

Right towards the end we passed through this thick door were Ranboo and I both used the force to pick up this HUGE metal lock and force bend it to keep the door shut. The lock being so heavy it had to take two of us just to lift it, and even then we were barely able to bend it. (And keep in mind the dream had previously established that we were both extremely strong force uses if not the most powerful. So that was a VERY very strong lock.)

While we are finishing up locking the door Techno is just running on towards a parking lot to escape. So Ranboo and I turn around and are close behind. As we are entering the parking lot I can hear behind us the door being broken down by the monster, as it has just gotten through the door we just locked.

As I am hearing the sounds of the door breaking and we are yelling at each other to hurry up, the dream slowly starts to fade to white as I being to wake up IRL.

Much later, after I woke up from my dream and pondered about how cool it was. I remembered that Ranboo IRL had mentioned that he was planning on taking pictures of his new Lightsaber that he recently bought for a sub-goal. The previous few days he was supposed to take said photos, however because of various circumstances he never did post them. That being said, I am familiar with my dreams. As normally dreams that are either extremely lucid, vivid, or something happens IRL that occurred in the dream, said dream will have meaning. (Obviously not all dreams are meaningful, and dreams probably differ from person to person, but I do recognize the patterns of my own dreams.) So because of this I thought to myself “I wonder if he will post his light-saber pictures today???”

So I remember keeping a close eye on twitter that day excitedly wondering, and sure enough Ranboo posted pictures of himself with his light-saber!

<https://twitter.com/Ranboosaysstuff/status/1370910261301932035?s=20>

So because of the dream I had just had, him posting these images on that day was DOUBLELY exciting for me. And also, made me wonder if perhaps there might be more meaning to them?

That being said, one thing I do notice is that while in the dream the light-saber Ranboo had was green, whereas in these images his saber was red (or orange? I think it's supposed to be red).

Again, I know not all dreams have special meanings, though I did want to record this one as at the end of the day, (despite there being some scary events that took place) the over all story was very cool.