

2003 Cricket World Cup - Statistical data points

Africa were the hosts interestingly as the most important prize in the sport of cricket, the World Cup, was held together in South Africa/Zimbabwe and Kenya in 2003. This competition saw the exit of the significant countries in the starter round which somehow decreased the excitement that individuals partook in following the competition pushing ahead.

With the hosts South Africa and different groups like Pakistan, West Indies and Britain crashing out of the competition early, the Cricketing carnival specialists in a condition of shock. Playing with no earlier test insight, Kenya appeared to have gelled in well as a unit and progressed to the super sixes round no sweat. The competition likewise saw the arrival of Canada, Netherlands and novices Namibia who were completely exposed to an exhaustive battering by the huge young men of the game. Australia appeared to be feeling heartless as they dominated all their matches in their gathering and hence bested it while then again Sri Lankans who had a terrible 1999 competition, beat their gathering. After a sparkling line of matches in the super sixes, Australia, Sri Lanka, India and shockingly Kenya, came to the semi finals.

The main semi last among Australia and Sri Lanka appeared to be a confuse in the long run since Ricky Ponting and his young men even in the wake of being limited to an unobtrusive all out batting originally subdued the Sri Lankans and never let them draw near to the objective. Australia continued on toward their third successive last at the cricket world cup. The other semi last polished off as expected with India stopping the Kenyan dream by scoring a simple 91 run triumph to set up themselves against the powerful Aussies in the last.

The last at the 2003 world cup would continuously be associated with the hardhearted batting show that the Australians put first up and heaped on the most elevated at any point complete in a WC last. Because of a brilliant unbeaten 100 years from Ricky Ponting, Australia wound up scoring 359/2 in their designated 50 overs went with an innings brimming with artfulness by Damien Martin too. India got off too a decent beginning kindness determined hitting from Virender Sehwag yet toward the end the Aussie all out demonstrated just excessively and they lifted their second sequential and a third world cup prize over all. Chaminda Vaas (SL) with his 23 wickets and Sachin Tendulkar (IND) for his 673 runs were the most noteworthy wicket taker and run scorer in the competition separately.
