

persona psychology is a subject that studies the human character via ordinary conduct or attitudes that signify someone.

character psychology has honestly been meant to be a field for a long time even before christ. this is also discovered in historic mythological literature , which provides information that drama actors regularly use make-up or mask to portray different characters or disguise their own identities. this method changed into later named through the romans with the time period character . from the phrase personality the word personality itself may be interpreted as the presence of a person thru an identity that does not reflect himself. instead, the drama actors want to create a deep affect for the audience, however do no longer depart an influence about the drama actor itself however an affect on the man or woman he plays. the time period personality then got here to name the actors themselves, who had been previously just a function however should turn out to be a level call that made the actors well-known.

<https://social.microsoft.com/Profile/s1psikologi> like different items or nature around us which have characteristics, human beings as social beings can also be recognized for his or her behavioral characteristics. to distinguish the characteristics of the actual behavior of drama actors and the behavior of the characters they play, philosophers are finally interested by reading human behavior through various research.

bahasa tubuh suami sayang istri the records of character psychology [three] evolved around the 18th century, whilst psychology have become a legitimate and diagnosed area, then character psychology also evolved into one of the branches of the discipline.