Asia is made of 46 nations. If you glance at the map of the planet, you can see two pieces of land essentially. The United world, plus three nations combined: Americas, Africa, plus Asia. All three are intertwined.

Europe is beyond Africa and Asia is only to the East. There are currently two nations that exist both in Asia and in Europe. The first and biggest is Russia that straddles the Far East from Eastern Europe to the tip of Japan. The other nation is Turkey and has a tiny part of Europe and the rest of Asia. In this area named West Asia, where Egypt in Africa is the neighbor of countries like Israel and Saudi Arabia in Asia, the three continents of Europe Africa and Asia are linked.

Asia's globe is subdivided into regions and a range of countries are in each region. The westernmost region is West Asia which includes many countries across the Red Sea and the Persian Gulf, some of which are very productive places of the Whole World like Dubai in the UAE.

There are two huge inland lakes just above Turkey and Iran, next to it, so large that they are called seas: the Black Sea above Turkey and the Caspian Sea above it. The area around these seas is called Central Asia which has countries that were in the U.S.S.R., the former countries that were part of undivided Russia until 1991 that have Asian countries such as Turkmenistan, Uzbekistan, Azerbaijan etc. So the major part of Asia is controlled by the big world, China with North and South Korea that Japan farther east from China. North of China is Mongolia and South of China is the Indian subcontinent. The tallest mountain chain on this earth, the Great Himalayan Mountain Line, forms the natural border between China and India. Click here: surat lamaran kerja

India has a prominent role on Asia's chart and there is a whole ocean named after it, the Indian Ocean that washes Africa's and Australia's coasts too. India is followed by a significant number of minor countries like Nepal, Myanmar, Bhutan and Sri Lanka.

There is a number of countries besides India, farther east, namely four island countries that make up the area called South East Asia. The Equator enters one of these island nations, Indonesia, and is the only region in Asia where the Equator travels over. It also moves across Maldives territorial seas, another island nation similar to Sri Lanka. Get more info: contoh cerpen

So learning about the Asian countries will benefit if you learned about the major regions as stated here and then you might also learn to draw the Asian map from memory and also learn to draw all the 46 countries exactly where they are.
